How To Determine the Principal Component

95% of data points within oval principal component of a dataset is the direction that has the largest variance because ○ computationally easiest

● retains maximum amount of "information" in original data

○ just a convention

View Intro

VIEW ANSWER

SUBMIT ANSWER